

FAQs

What is brow lamination?

It's a mini perming service designed specifically for brows. The process involves securing the hair in an upward stroke pattern, then setting them into place with a gentle brow perming solution. Adding tint to your service is a great option for extra richness and depth.

How many times can Brow Lamination be repeated? The service can be repeated at any time when the effect weakens around 4-6 weeks.

How safe is the treatment?

The treatment is safe! All products are specially developed- for the eye area under the strictest guidelines and are very well tolerated. Make sure you adhere to the specified exposure times. Lash & Brow Perm also contains keratin, which has a nourishing and hair-strengthening effect.

What should be considered after the treatment? After lamination, the eyebrows are malleable and still flexible. Therefore, the eyebrows should not come into contact with water- or steam for 24 hours after the treatment. Mechanical movements such as rubbing, exfoliating, swimming and going to the sauna should be avoided in the first 24 hours after the treatment. Your client should not apply eyebrow makeup or self-tanner to their face. Just brush the eyebrows into shape. After 24 hours, the shape is fixed and the customer can style the eyebrows as usual, wet them, etc. The sauna and swimming pool are no longer a problem either.

Can I get my brows waxed at the same time?

Any type of hair removal will need to be done at the end of your brow lamination and as well after tinting brows. Brow Lamination – Tinting – Shaping

Is Brow Lamination also suitable for thin and few eyebrows?

Even very thin eyebrows can appear fuller as a result of the treatment. The new shape of the brows makes them appear longer and thicker.

What are the contraindications for brow lamination?

Very dry skin. If you use a retinol cream daily, or AHA/BHA cleansers your skin may be too dry for this service and you should discontinue use 5-7 days prior to your treatment depending how intensive your skin care routine is, to avoid redness and dry skin in the treated brow area. You can not receive this service if you have recently had any aggressive recent facial procedures (chemical peels, microdermabrasion, micro needling, and laser treatments) If you're experiencing active acne breakouts or wounds in the brow area this service should not be done on open wounds or active breakouts. If you're experiencing certain types of hormonal changes or thyroid conditions that cause hair loss you should wait to receive this service until things balance out in your system.

What is the process of Brow Lamination?

Brow Lamination is a 3 or 4 (when you include a tint) step chemical process that slowly relaxes the brow hair and makes it pliable. The first step is the relaxer - it slowly opens the hair follicle and expands it allowing it to be relaxed. The second step is a setting treatment that "sets" the hair into the direction that the hair has been relaxed into during the first step, the second step also bulks up & softens the hair so that it becomes thicker by each strand (fine hair loves this treatment) The third step is tinting and shaping if you wish to include these in your treatment. The 4th is a moisturizing gel to infuse into your opened hair follicle and lock in nourishment for the brow hair.

Can the eyebrows be coloured before lamination?

No. If tinted first, wait 24 hours before doing the eyebrow lift. Immediately after dyeing, the hair is still saturated with the dye mixture, so there is still plenty of hydrogen peroxide there. The Brow & Lash Perm is thus applied to already saturated hair and reacts with it. This creates an uneven corrugation. Colouring after eyebrow lifting is safe and recommended. Note the shorter exposure time.

Do the eyebrows need special care after use?

After the treatment, the RefectoCil Styling Gel provides perfect care and nourishes the hair. RefectoCil Care Balm is also recommended for home care. The rich formula strengthens the hair and makes it resistant. Caution: Apply Care Balm after 24 hours. The oily formula could weaken the result.

I want to lighten and laminate the eyebrows with Blonde Brow. Is that possible?

The eyebrows must be laminated first. We recommend waiting 24 hours after laminating before bleaching

Can I use RefectoCil Brow Lamination on pregnant customers?

In general, we see no problem with using it during pregnancy. Please note, however, that we have not conducted any specific studies with pregnant women. Check with your physician.

Is RefectoCil Brow Lamination vegan?
